-The "hell of our fathers" is creating no little discussion in theological circles up north at present. In this city people are sat-isfied with the old plan of salvation and damnation, because they believe they might go farther and fare worse. What's the use discussing a thing you can know nothing about until it is too late either to retrace your steps or to give information to those who are following. The theological agony should ease up, and those considering it should ponder over the following story: "A young man once went to a country place to be examined for the position of school teacher. A careful committeeman said, teacher. A careful committeeman said, 'Young man, do you larn the children that the world is round or flat?' This was a leading question, but the young man got the school by saying that he taught either way, according to the taste of the parents. So it must be with the young preachers who expect to thrive and be sent to Europe for sore threat. They must be willing to let those be aroat. They must be willing to let those be damned who insist upon it; and they must be ready to talk of a comfortable hereafter trouble enough in this world."

-A hitherto unpublished letter of John Stuart Mill, on the subject of combination and wages, has been printed in England. It is dated Avignon, October 8, 1868, and is as follows: "The workingmen at present find, or think they find, that their attempts to obtain higher wages by combination are thwarted through their being undersold by foreigners; and they are now trying whether, by including the foreign operatives in the ombination, they can remove this obstacle. This seems to be a natural experiment for them to try, and the last experiment of combination for wages which remains for them to make; and I desire that they may try it to the utmost, so that they may be convinced that whatever they cannot accomplish in that way they cannot hope to accomplish at all. To the particular question you ask, the fol-lowing is my answer: If combination to raise wages is confined to a few branches of industry, or is only successful in a few, the masters in those branches are able to indemnify themselves by raising their prices. But if there was a 'universal trades union,' extending to not their own will to do it, but the fact that they can remove their capital to other em-ployments in which wages have not risen, and in which, therefore, profits are higher; and this transfer of capital, diminishing sup-ply, raises prices in the businesses which cap-ital is leaving. But if the rise of wages afobliged, instead, to submit to lower profits. Nor do I see any limit to this, except that if

ATHENS, February 5 .- The Turkish mingovernment as a declaration of war. He elegraphed to Constantinople for men of war to convey him hence, in consequence of which the Turkish fleet, under Hobart Pasha, has arrived. The Greek government is in onsternation, and intends appealing to the intervention of quaranteeing powers. Great panic prevails. THE EASTERN QUESTION DISCUSSED IN THE BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS. LONDON, February 5.-In the house of commons the debate on the supplementary vote was continued. Unimportant speeches were made by Frederick Stanley, Lord Fitzmaurice and Mr. Birley. Charles Norwood, liberal member, said he could not undertake the responsibility of offering the vote. Sir Charles Dilke, radical, declared the strongest objection to the vote was it would be mis-represented abroad. Alexander Hall pro-tested against Eastern Europe being left to Russian ambition under pretext of religion. Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt said if the gov-ernment, as might be seen from conservative cheers, intended to enter the conference with the policy indicated by the last speaker, it meant war. If the government desired a durable peace the basis of their policy at the must be a recognition of the fact that the independence and integrity of the Ottoman empire had ceased. He continued: "It is not too late for the government to rival and surpass Russia in the conference and surpass Russia in the conference as the champion of oppressed nationalities. The whole country would support such a policy. He deprecated any support of Austrian interests. If, before the close of the debate, the government would declare a policy of peace which the liberals could approve, they would have a unanimous vote."

Sir Harding Gifford, solicitor-general, said he was astonished at the moderation of the opposition, after their violent acitation in opposition, after their violent agitation in the country. He protested against being driven to accept Russia's pretensions that she was the only power which would act on be-half of oppressed nationalities, and enfran-chise other States while maintaining a despotism at home. The opposition asked the house to weaken the hands of the government at a time when every element of mis-chief existed in Europe, and England's influ-ence was trembling in the balance. The debate was adjourned till Thursday. WOMAN ATTEMPTS TO ASSASSINATE THE

ATHENS, February 5.-The foreign ministers held a meeting to-day, and undertook to guarantee Epirus against bombardment if left unarmed, thereby remaining an open port. The ministers adjourned the meeting to wait further instructions. INCREASING UNEASINESS AT ST. PETERS

London, February 5.—A correspondent at St. Petersburg says: "The feeling of uneasi-ness with regard to the political situation seems to increase. The attitude unexpected-ly assumed by Austria is now known to all." VARIOUS RUMORS.

LONDON, February 3 .- The Standard says: Convener, of Glasgow, presbyter of the established church, has telegraphed the pope that an interdict will be demanded against the proposed papal hierarchy from the supreme civil court of Scotland, and the laws of the country will be rigidly enforced against it.

Madame Janauschek at the Theater Last night quite an appreciative audience appeared at the Theader and enjoyed the rendition of Chesney Wold, a dramatization of Dickens' Bleak House, by Madame Janauschek and supporting dramatic company. The drama has been presented here before many a time, and oft by Mrs. Bowers and other actrasses and companies, hence probaother actresses and companies; hence, proba-bly, the theater-goers were not so anxing, they prefering to wait and witness Janausce ek in some other roles. People who attaind the theater grow wears of the same piece when presented too often, the popular taste becomes cloyed as to dramatic business as about many other things. Last night Janauschek, as "Lady Deadlock" and "Hortense" was er cellent, as usual; indeed, you feel when she appears on the stage that you are in the pressurce of a great actress. She carries her audiences with her and never fails to please. Occasionally her German acfails to please. Occasionally her German accent mars words and passages, but her acting is perfect in detail. Madame Janauschek was well supported by the company. To-night Geibel's famous tragedy Brunhild, translated into English by a London playright, will be the grand attraction. The play is a

ing. In her remorse and anguish, "Brun-hild" slays herself in the presence of his corpse. The characters are all brilliantly in-dividualized, each speaking its own appropri-ate language. There is no struggling for stage effect, no speech to catch the ear of the effect, no speech to catch the ear of the groundlings; on the contrary, there is a sustained dignity in the whole that is thoroughly admirable, thoroughly fascinating. The translation, as a critic has said, has been superbly made, and the exquisite ideas of the poet-dramatist are given in a nervous and fluent English that does them every justice. In many portions of the play, especially in the manner in which the various personages are permitted to develop their inner natures, there are a power and skill that remind us—
